

Early History of Foster Golf Links, Tukwila, WA

Established 1925; Course Opened 2-13-1925; Second Nine Opened 1927
Course Architect: George H. Eddy

Named after the town of Foster (in turn named after Joseph Foster, an early Washington pioneer), Foster Golf Links sits on the banks of the Duwamish River in what is now Tukwila, Washington. The golf course began as a dream of one man who sought to own and operate a golf course. His name was George Henry Eddy.

... It's Swingtime at
FOSTER

Eighteen holes of perfect golf. Foster greens are smoother and brushed early every morning. Foster fairways are greener and softer. George Eddy's expert care keeps Foster in top condition the year 'round. Come out tomorrow—or Sunday!

YOU CAN ALWAYS GET ON WITHOUT WAITING ON WEEK DAYS

Telephone GLendale 9633

★ 10 Miles South of Town on Old Tacoma Highway

Weekdays
ALL DAY
50c
9 holes....35c

Sat.-Sun.
Holidays
ALL DAY
75c
18 holes... 60c
9 holes....40c

Seattle Times - March 4, 1938 Advertisement

Golf professional, golf architect, entrepreneur, inventor, Eddy was born in Zennor, Cornwall, England on May 23, 1878. He emigrated to America in 1910 at the age of 32. His whereabouts from 1910 to 1914 is a mystery until he surfaced in Oregon in 1914. He became the golf professional at a number of golf clubs in Oregon including the Salem Golf Club in 1914, Pendleton Country Club from 1916 - 1919, and Baker Country Club in 1920 - 1921. It was during this time, in 1914, that he laid out the second nine at Gearhart Golf Links (Oregonian 9-20-1914).

He moved to Renton, Washington in 1922 to become the golf professional at Earlington Golf Club where he would stay until 1924. Then Eddy took a bold and risky venture: he would build a new golf course and operate it with his wife. Golf's popularity exploded during the 1920s following World War I and demand for more golf courses was high.

In the Puget Sound area, golf clubs were being added at a rapid rate: Rainier opened for play in 1920, Inglewood in 1921, Fircrest in 1923, Glen Acres in 1924, and Broadmoor in 1924. And then there were Jefferson Park and Earlington Golf Club nearby. Even with golf's rapid growth, how could a new, fledgling golf course built and managed by husband and wife survive in competition with all these other clubs?

Yet it did. In 1924, against the advice of others, and mortgaged to the hilt, Eddy purchased a fifty acre tract of land on the Foster homestead on the banks of the Duwamish River. By September, 1924 Eddy began laying out a nine hole course.

By February, 1925 the course, initially referred to as the Maple Grove golf course, was ready for play. Constructed during the winter months, the course was undoubtedly rough. Yet the entire golfing community in the Puget Sound area turned out in support of George Eddy's creation.

And a Hundred or So Will Enjoy the Hospitality of the George-Eddys at Maple Grove, Friday, February 13.

"HOWDY, George, and you, too, Mrs. George; we wish you luck!"

Which will be the smart and proper thing to say when we all meet George H. Eddy and Mrs. George out at their Maple Grove golf course at the formal opening next Friday. For, besides being Friday, it is also the 13th of the month. So, the Eddys will probably need that luck sign hung on them.

But neither George nor Mrs. George are worried about Friday, the 13th. They signed the papers which gave them their golf course site on a Friday in September and planted the greens on a Friday.

From all accounts there is going to be quite a lot of howdy-doing at Maple Grove next Friday. Everybody is turning out to help the George Eddys put over their original idea—a one-family course, with George in charge outside and Mrs. George in charge inside, at the comfortable old home converted into a clubhouse.

George Abrams, at the Spalding store, is receiving the entries for the opening day's tournament. Bob Johnstone is looking after marshaling the professionals and Abrams the amateurs. The play will start at 10:30 a. m., and will consist of four-ballers, with medal scores counting in a sweepstakes.

George Eddy will do the starting and Mrs. George will pour. That is, there will be no entry fee, the golf being on George, while the sandwiches and coffee will be on Mrs. George.

Bon Stein, Lee Steil and Bob Johnstone, with a fourth man to be selected, will be the "show" four-baller of the day. There are forty-odd already signed up. There'll probably be a hundred by the time Mrs. George puts the coffee pot on.

The Maple Grove golf course is situated at Foster, in Duamish Valley, it is nine miles from the Totem Pole and lies along the Pacific Highway to Tacoma. Road signs tell where it is. It can be reached by automobile, motor bus, interurban or hoof.

Seattle Times — Feb. 8, 1925

On February 13, 1925, Foster Golf Links officially opened for play with a four-ball tournament. Governor Louis F. Hart launched the first tee shot. In the feature match, Walter Pursey, Inglewood club pro teamed up with amateur Lee Steil to defeat Robert Johnstone, Seattle club pro and amateur Bon Stein 1-up. Low score of the day was turned in by Pursey with a 72. Stein was low amateur with a 78.

Green fees were 50 cents for all day. The old Foster farm house was used as the club house. Mrs. Eddy did the cooking, and sold sandwiches. Thus began Eddys' one family business venture.

Property of Museum of History & Industry, Seattle

Foster Golf Links Clubhouse – circa 1930 (Courtesy of MOHAI)

Measuring 3100 yards for nine holes, the course was of standard length for the time. It boasted two of the longest holes on the Pacific coast: the No. 5 hole at 656 yards long, par 6, and the No. 7 hole at 598 yards, par 6. The holes were each split into two when the course expanded to 18 holes in 1927.

In 1927, Eddy purchased the adjoining property to bring the course to a full eighteen holes on 85 acres of land. Eddy believed a 6000 yard course could be laid out, although for most of its existence, the course operated between 5000 – 5500 yards.

Somehow the course survived the Great Depression and the 1933 flood which nearly destroyed the golf course when the Duwamish River overran its banks. "It rained the entire month of December that year, and by Christmas Eve, the flooding Duwamish River had belched unbelievable quantities of debris on the course. Fairways, tees, and greens along its path were strewn with logs, pitted with holes and saturated with water and muck."

Ever resourceful, George Eddy took out patents on several golf equipment, including this “leaf vacuum machine” that he used on the Foster Golf Links.

Seattle Times 12-9-1934

George Eddy died in 1941 at the age of 63. His son, Robert Eddy, operated the course for some time until 1951 when he sold the golf course to Joe Aliment. Aliment had worked for George Eddy as caddie master and greens keeper since 1925.

In 1978 the City of Tukwila purchased the Foster Golf Links from Aliment brothers. Ceremony for the transfer of the property took place under the maple tree planted on July 4, 1873 by Joseph Foster, early pioneer. The tree still stands today in a dedicated area next to the parking lot.

On September 19-20, 2015 the Northwest Hickory Players hosted its first annual Pacific Northwest Hickory Championship at Foster Golf Links and at West Seattle Golf Course.

In discussing the course record at Foster, Billy Aliment recalled in 1978 that a "young amateur" shot a 61 on the par 68 course some years earlier during the Seattle City Amateur. That young amateur? He is no other than Northwest Hickory Players' own Roy Niznik.

CHOKING, ERRATIC (HE SAYS):

Niznik's 61 Gives Him 127, City Golf Lead

By GIL LYONS

A modest young man who admits to "choking and erratic play" took command yesterday in the Seattle City amateur golf tournament.

LeRoy Niznik, 21, shot a 7-under-par 61 at Foster to take a four-stroke advantage into today's final round. Niznik's 36-hole total was 127, nine-under par.

The Seattle University accounting major liked the figures he saw on his scorecard yesterday. He had seven birdies and an eagle on a card which showed six 3's and a pair of 2's.

NIZNIK TOURED the front nine in 30. He came in with a 31 despite taking a double-bogey 5 on the 15th.

"My putter was pretty good to me today," the tall, slender Chieftain said. "But I don't know how I'll do tomorrow. I'm famous for my chokes and erratic play. I'll probably dream about that double-bogey all night."

Niznik, winner of the King

County public-links tournament last spring, rammed in birdie putts of 12 feet on the second and fifth holes.

He birdied the sixth with a two-footer and two-putted for another after driving the green on the 290-yard eighth.

On the back nine, Niznik birdied the 11th, 13th and 14th before running into trouble at the 15th. There, he hooked his tee shot behind a fence, missed the green, chipped short and two-putted.

Niznik made it all back on the 460-yard 18th. He knocked his 5-iron second shot onto the green and holed a 20-footer for his eagle.

RON HAGEN, Seattle University freshman who, like Niznik, plays out of Olympic Hills, shot a 66 yesterday to drop four shots back at 131. Hagen was the first-round leader with a 65.

Tied for third were Tom Storey, Washington amateur champion; Bruce Richards and John Fabbio, all at 133. Bill Tindall was eight strokes off the pace at 135.

Foster's troublesome greens and water hazards contributed to the downfall of Ken Storey, 1963 Northwest amateur winner, and Bob Carlson, defending champion.

Storey, usually a fine putter, failed to hole a birdie putt and went out with a 73. Carlson missed the cutoff by two strokes after dumping his tee shot into the Duwamish River on the 16th.

The field was reduced to the low 16 for today's final round, scheduled to begin at 11 o'clock.

Yesterday's results:

LeRoy Niznik, Olympic Hills ..	66-61-127
Ron Hagen, Olympic Hills	65-66-131
Ron Storey, Inglewood	66-67-133
Bruce Richards, Overlake	67-66-133
John Fabbio, Rainier	67-66-133
Bill Tindall, Inglewood	69-66-135
Jim Gannon, Sand Point	71-65-136
Clarence Smith, Rainier	70-66-136
George Pugachoff, Sand Point ..	67-67-134
Elwin Fanning, Glen Acres	68-70-138
Maud Cose, Beacon Hill	68-70-138
John Tuft, Olympic Hills	70-69-139
Mike Evans, Rainier	70-69-139
Bill Meyer, Inglewood	69-70-139
Ron McDougall, Foster	70-69-139
Gordy Richardson, Foster	68-71-139
Warren Dawson, Broadmoor	70-70-140
Gary Henderson, Inglewood	70-70-140
Carl Jensen, Broadmoor	69-71-140
Ed Ellison, Redmond	71-70-141
John Thorp, Foster	71-70-141
Bob Carlson, Glen Acres	70-71-141
Orrin Vincent, Rainier	68-73-141

Written by Martin Pool
October, 2015
fas1863@hotmail.com
www.nwhickoryplayers.org